Letters from the People.

The Louisville Journal and its Rebel Oracles.

Not from a presumptious spirit, but to avail of your generous offer to the people, do I seek to record, in print a few thoughts on a topic of general interest. I trust to do this in no party or sectional spirit, and you may, should this merit an insertion, hear from me again.
I notice the Cincinnati Commercial recently gave these extracts from a statement made in the Journal of this city, of its edi-tors interview, at his office, with a returned rebel Major General, whom he styles, as the Commercial observes, "an intelligent and distinguished gentleman:"

"He said that, in view of the present condition of slavery in Kentucky, he thought the happiness and prosperity of the State demanded immediate emancipation. He thought the men who are now opposing the amendment in Kentucky were actuated by is emphatically favorable to the restoration of the Union upon a lasting basis." No crime so heinous before God or man, shameless infidels. Even for the right of Free Speech, on a subject of national importance, in peace times, and much more in war, they deserved tar and feathers, universal proscription, or hanging like John

But no sooner do public opinion and the noble armies of the Union put down the rebellion, than the Journal turns its back on its quondam friends, and joins, nominally at least, the advocates of freedom. To conscience and the appeals of patriotism, when urged to join the ranks of genuine Union-ists, it returned the cold and cynical answer, "Call at a more convenient time."
That time came, when the religion of self-interest compelled it to recant its heresies against the freedom and peace of the land, and enlist in the ranks of those who had, with voice and pen patiently labored, through ood and evil report, for the limitation and final removal of slavery, by constitutional amendment or individual State action. without an appeal to the bloody and terri-ble arbitrament of war. Now that war results in triumph to the cause of National n; now that whipt and returned rebels find it for their interest, too, to denounce slavery as a nuisance, and the advocates of its continuance as the worst enemies of the State, the Journal lauds their wisdom, complacently endorses their views, and terms them, not agrarians and revolutionists, but "intelligent and distinguished gentlemen,

It and they once anathematized the advocates of freedom. Now they pretend to befriend them. How long it will be ere they will find it politic and convenient to aid in another rebellion against the nation in behalf of restoring slavery, would be as hard to predict as any future event depending on human interest or caprice.

To hear renegades to freedom like this To hear renegades to freedom like this rebel General spoken of as "distinguished and intelligent," is simply absurd and disgusting to every genuinely loyal mind. If he is "distinguished" for anything, it is betraying his country; selling a glorious birth-right; doing infamous acts; Arnold like, deserting his country in the hour of her sorest need.

Is not the destiny of the State and country, may we not justly ask, safer under the try, may we not justly ask, safer under the guidance of the tried friends of both, who have proved their firm allegiance to freedom by their sufferings for her sake in the fiery furnace of persecution, than in the keeping of the erst parasites of slave oli-garchs South, and their "distinguished" friends who have been, happily for freedom and Union, forced into submission to the Constitution and laws?

A Hint to Boys.

Under the heading, "A Good Boy Wanted, says the Agriculturalist, a gentleman of New York advertised in one of the daily papers. Upon entering his office the next morning there stood a crowd of forty or fifty boys waiting to see him. All were strangers, and of course it was rather difficult to select the best one of his company. But there were a few signs by which it could be decided at once that many of these lads were not wanted, from which our young friends may take a hint. Several of the how had uncombed bear and unweated. the boys had uncombed hair and unwashed hands and faces. If they could not keep hands and faces. It they could not keep their own persons neat they would not be likely do their work nicely, so those were passed over without further notice. One boy looked bright and smart, but he kept to the front of all others passed over without further notice. One boy looked bright and smart, but he kept crowding his way to the front of all others and thrusting himself into notice. It was and thrusting himself into notice. It was readily to be seen that he was too "smart," he would prove pert and saucy. Then came a boy with a book peeping out of his breast a pocket—a cheap traskey novel—he was not wanted; his mind would be following the hero of the wonderful story through impossible adventures while his work suffered. One boy fell to quarreling with his neighbor; another had to be reprimanded for meddling with articles in the office; a third chewed tobacco; neither of these was wanted. Form the few remaining, after disminsing the above classes, the boy was selected who could bring the best testimonials of honesty, intelligence and industry; so you see a good name is worth much, and a good character will be sure, sooner or later, to bring a good reputation and its rewards.

> SIXTY-EIGHTH REGIMENT OHIO VETERAN VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

This regiment was organized at Napoleon, Ohio, November 21st, 1861, from whence it moved to Camp Chase, Ohio, January 13th. 1862, and moved from thence, February 1862, and moved from thence, February 12th, 1862, by way of Cincinnati and Louisville to Paducah, Ky., where it joined the fleet, then about to move up the Cumberland river against Fort Donelson. The regiment disembarked below the Fort and joined Grant's army and took part in the reduction of that rebel strong hold. On the 10th of March following it moved across the country with the balance of the army to ountry with the balance of the army to Metal Landing on the Tennessee river, six miles above Fort Henry, where it took steamer for Pittsburg Landing, but before arriving there received orders to stop at Crump's Landing, five miles below Pittsburg; it formed a part of the second brigade of Gen. Lew Wallace's division. The brigade was commanded by Col. Thayer, of the first Nebraska, (now Brigadier General); it was not engaged in the battle of Shiloh, being left in charge of camp and train at Campaign. train at Crump's Landing. It took part in the skirmishes in the advance on Corinth, and the seige of that place, After the fall of Corinth it was marched to Bolivar, Tennessee, and took part in the movement on Iuka, and in the battle of Mattamora on the Hatchie river, with Price and Van Dorn; after which it formed a part of the second brigade of Gen Leby. part of the second brigade of Gen. John A. Logan's division, and was in the Northern Mississippi campaign, and arrived at Memphis, Tennessee, January 25, 1863; from thence it moved down the Mississippi to Lake Providence, and helped to dig the canal from the river to the lake at that place; from there it moved down the river Millikin's Bend, and assisted in buildi the military road from the Bend to New Carthage—the road by which Grant's army Carthage—the road by which Grant's army moved to gain the river below Vicksburg—and on the 1st day of May, 1863, it crossed the Mississippi and took part in the battle of Thompson's Hill, following the enemy closely, it took part in the battles of Raymond, Mississippi, May 12, 1863, and Jackson, Mississippi, May 14, and Champion Hills, May 16, 1863, and participated in the entire siege of Vicksburg, and all the raids in Mississippi, from Vicksburg to Jackson, Canton, Bogachitta, Meridian, and the Monroe raid, in Louisiana. The regiment re-organized as veterans December 15, 1863, and went home as a veteran organization in April. After returning to Cairo, May in April. It participated in the fight at Big Shanty, Bushy Mountain, Kenesaw, Nickajack Creek, Atlanta, July 21st, 22d and 23d, and the entire siege of Atlanta; also at Jonesboro and Lovejoy Station; also in the famous chase after Hood through Northern Georgia and Alabama, and in "Sherman's march to the Sea." It participated in the siege of Savannah, and in Sherman's raid through the Carolinas; at Pocataligo,

This regiment was raised in Muskingum, Morgan, Guernsey, Noble, and Columbiana counties, and organized under Col. M. D. counties, and organized under Col. M. D. Leggett at Zanesville, Jan. 11, 1862. It left the State in February for Fort Donelson, participating in the capture of that strongly fortified position. The regiment was afterwards removed to Shiloh, where in the division of Gen. Lew Wallace it was actively engaged. Thence it marched to the siege of Corinth; thence to Jackson, Tenn. It with the 20th Ohio and 30th Illinois were the first Federal troops in that most rebelthe first Federal troops in that most rebel-lious part of Tennessee; it spent the sum-mer of 1862 at Bolivar, Grand Junction, mer of 1862 at Bolivar, Grand Junction, and Lagrange, and with the 20th and 68th Ohio, under command of Col. Leggett, was on the march almost every day, breaking up rebel encampments and fighting the enemy as far as Iuka, Miss. Afterwards it commenced the winter campaign, under Gen. Grant, into the interior of Mississippi, and returned after a march of nearly one hundred miles to Grand Junction and and returned after a march of nearly one hundred miles to Grand Junction, and marched to Memphis through snow from three to eight inches deep. After a short delay it embarked on transports on the 22d of February for Vicksburg, taking a very prominent part in running the transports by the batteries blockading the Mississippi. Then took part in the battles of Grand Gulf, Port Gibson, Raymond, Jackson, Champion Hills, and the siege of Vicksburg. On the 5th of January the regiment veteranized and soon after entored upon veteranized and soon after entored upon the destructive campaign from Vicksburg to Meridian, Miss. After its return to Vicksburg it went home on veteran furlough; thence to Georgia, where it took a very ac-tive part in all the bloody conflicts of that tive part in all the bloody conflicts of that victorious campaign resulting in the fail of Atlanta, Georgia, On the 22d of July the Ohio brigade fought one entire division of the rebels in front and at the same time repelled a heavy attack in their rear, where the noble and gallant McPherson fell. Seeing their commander, Col. Scott, taken prisoner, the brigade ralled under Col. G. F. Wiles, of the seventy-eighth Ohio, and fought with the most invincible courage, and an obstlnate desperation that knew no giving way—nearly one-half of the brigade lay killed and wounded upon the battle-field. The enemy were repulsed on all sides, with a loss unparalleled during the war. The regiment, after pulsed on all sides, with a loss unparalleied during the war. The regiment, after the fall of Atlanta, followed Hood, hastening his march into Tennessee. It returned to Atlanta, and joined in campaigns through Georgia to Savannah; thence to Pocotaligo, through South and North Carolina to Richmond and Washington; thence to the beautiful city of Louisville, Ky., having marched in all over 6000 miles by land, 4500 by railroad and 4000 by water. The regiment haa had upon its rolls nearly two thousand men. It has now an aggregate of five hundred (500), about 1500 being killed, died of disease, discharged or mustered out.
No regiment ever called into service contained more good men, or stands higher in discipline and morality, or excelled the discipline and morality, or excelled the seventy-eighth Ohio in efficient service and every good quality of a true soldier. They never suffered a defeat, never was driven back by the enemy, and during four years' service has yet the first time to be whipped; and at the present time there is no world of and at the present time there is no word of discontent or complaint heard among the men. With a full confidence in our leaders men. With a full confidence in our leaders and government, are willing to march and fight on if necessary; and, we assure the good citizens of Louisville, they will never find a man of the Seventy-eighth acting disorderly or ungentlemanly in your city. The following comprises its field and staff: Brevet Brigadier General G. F. Wiles, Lieutenant Colonel G. D. Munson, Major S. C. Robinson, Lieutenant Wm. Sleeth, adjutant; Lieutenant C. C. Wiles, assistant quartermaster; Major J. S. Reeves, surgeon, now surgeon-in-chief of third divisgeon, now surgeon-in-chief of third divis-ion; G. F. Peckham, assistant surgeon; J. D. Webb, second assistant surgeon; T. M.

SEVENTEENTH WISCONSIN VETERAN VOLUN TEER INFANTRY.
This regiment was organized at Madison, Wisconsin, on the 10th of March, 1862, under orders from the Governor, and was composed principally of Irishmen. Its original Colonel, John L. Duran, resigned November 25th, 1862, and was succeeded by its present Colonel. Shortly after its organization the regiment was called to Pittsburg Landing, Tennessee, where it joined the grand army under Major General Grant, then about to advance on Corinth. It was assigned to the first brigade, sixth division assigned to the first brigade, sixth division.
The regiment participated in the battle of Corinth, October 3d and 4th, 1862, and in the Mississippi raid, after which it was ordered to Lake Providence, Louisiana. It took an active part during the siege and battles before Vicksburg. After the fall of the city it was ordered to Natchez, where it was mounted, and did active services.

Scarfs, it was mounted, and did active service for four months. On the 8th of March the regiment proceeded to Wisconsin on veteregiment proceeded to Wisconsin on veteran furlough, and returned to the field on the 23d day of April, 1864, reporting to Brevet Major General Leggett, commanding the third division of the seventeenth army corps. Under his command it participated in the campaign before Kenesaw, on the Chattahoochie, and around Atlanta—in the battles of Jonesboro, Lovejoy's Station, Savannah, Pocotaligo, Orangaburg, Columvannah, Pocotaligo, Orangeburg, Columbia, Bentonville. The regiment now numbers thirty-four commissioned officers and 729 non-commissioned officers and privates, making an aggregate of 763 present and absent. The field and staff officers are A. G. The World, of course, takes ground against this, and says it can't be done. So also, that paper contended that the rebellion could never be put down, and that the legal tender notes would ruin the country. The precise mode of action recommended was tried in Kansas, and rescued that State from slavery. It is entirely feasible, and we hope will be extensively tried. A large body of emigrants from the Northern States will desire to settle in the South es seen will desire to settle in the South, as soon as affairs are more settled, and co-operative ef-fort will cheapen their removal, and secure them many advantages as new settlers, such as school houses and churches. Under such circumstances also, emigrants will be better able to stand up against a hostile and perhaps turbulent public opinion than if settling singly at considerable intervals of territory. We see it stated that already a large company has been formed, having its headquarters at Richmond, Va., and denominated the Virginia Emigration and Land Company, which has for its object the repopulation of Virginia, which certainly offers many inducements to settlers. One leading object of this company is to facilitate the transfer of Virginia lands by bringing them into the market, for sale in small farms, which it is expected emigrants from the North will eagerly take up.—[Detroit Tribune. der such circumstances also, emigrants

NEGRO NATURE A GOOD DEAL LIKE HUMAN NATURE.

Papers devoted to anarchy, ill-will and the devil, are busy collecting evidence that negroes won't work in a state of freedom. They snap at all accounts representing slaves leaving their beatific homes and crowding in unmanageable throngs about military posts, asking protection, shelter and food. Some of these accounts are par tially authentic, others are rank and ill-intentioned fabrications. They are all treated as unmixed truth by the class of journals referred to, and the interpretation of them is by a system of logic which may be designated as the "conservative-democratic" It is a method of reasoning which dispenses with, or is at least indifferent to all parts of a syllogism except the conclusion. The facts are of no consequence, nor the circumstance that they legitimately conduct to some wholly different or even opposite conclusion than the one assumed by these philosophers. They set out with the affirmation that "niggers" will not work except under the compulsion of the lash, and they strut over the feat of arriving at the same statement as a conclusion, although the pretended "facts" that lead to it might be utterly unfounded, and the real facts bearing upon the case utterly at variance with such a conclusion.

These repositories of conservative wisdom have much to say of course about the happiness of the negro in a state of bondage. They don't explain to us the extraordinary phenomenon of men and women by the thousand, scattered over vast sections of country, leaving these happy homes where reciprocal affection rooted in reciprocal service blooms in perpetual sweetness like the orange-tree, and braving unknown perils and intolerable hardships, tramp off nnknown regions in pursuit of happiness. They don't explain to us the necessity of binding the slave down to his happiness by savage and bloody laws which dishonor christendom. They don't stoop to point out the propriety of this clause for instance in the Slave Code of Kentucky:

If the owner or hirer of a slave shall li-cense him to go at large, and trade as a free-man, or shall permit him to go at large, man, or shall permit him to go at large, and hire himself out for his own benefit, or that of others, he shall be fined forty dollars for each offense.

This clause was confessedly enacted to prevent slaves from earning the means to securing their own freedom by purchase. If negroes wont work for pay, what necessity was there for such a law? We dont ask the question expecting any answer. Neither do we expect any explanation of the whimsical magnanimity that occasionally used to be exhibited, in requiting a favorite slave for prolonged and signal fidelity of service, by giving him his freedom and turning him adrift from his happy home, cutting him off forever from the further enjoyment of the "beneficent lash." Nor do we hope for any use to be made by these logicians of the rather singular fact that there are a good many thousand negroes in this city working for wages with patient industry and no little success in results, against formidable difficulties. All such items they consider wholly irrelavent and contemptible. Against them all they fulminate their "cursed be Ham," and the grandiloquent humbug that slavery is in accordance with Divine decrees, and a bless-

But to those who can reason, whose brains have not been stupefied by the ichor of this poisonous, devil-born institution of slavery, we desire to present a consideration or two. It is not extravagant or fanatical to assume that there is a great deal of average human nature in the negro. That he is actuated by motives more or less akin to those which constitute the grand resource of the world's activity generally. That he is stimulated by hunger, cold, passions, affections, and the promptings of self-interest in a manner curiously resemof the chivalry.

It is not surprising that he should distrust those who grudge him with such manin finding himself a freeman, be a little rewrath at being compelled to release him from bondage. The negro may not be very much enlightened as yet, but he has sagacity enough, and has had for years, to see that the services are not reciprocal between himself and his master; that his own interests are not in the least consulted in this relationship of servitude, and that all the sanctimonious blab of the white man about the obligations of the slave are bosh, about the obligations of the slave are bosh, about the obligations of the slave are bosh, and a lie. He perceives very and a lie, He perceives very and enough to release the day of the slave are bosh, and a lie, He perceives very and enough to release the same that the sanctimonious blab of the white man about the obligations of the slave are bosh, and a lie, He perceives very and enough to release the same that the sanctimonious blab of the white man about the obligations of the slave are bosh, and a lie, He perceives very and enough and every indication is that the same to the pitting of his autocratic will against the pitting of his autocratic will against the wises theads and the best statesmanship in his realm. To back out now is, amongst other humiliations, to acknowledge the sagacity of Prince Napoleon in his speech at Ajaccio. To go on, is to incur the greatest to their duties from this office.

EUREKA! The Democrat has suddenly discovered a upon the contented African—the doom that upon the contented African—the doom that tears him ruthlessly away from sweet, delightful bondage—is temporarily suspended, and a highly animating prospect fills the full compass of its vision. The circumstance that seems to have effected this change is "emigration." The editor has discovered that the war has started a tidal and pany as they were before the emission of the property of the emission of the property of the content of the co covered that the war has started a tidal flow of people towards the late rebel States. "Our miles and miles of fruitful, unoccupied land" invite the industry of these immigrants, says the editor. He perceives that labor is scarce and land plenty in the relabor is scarce and land plenty in the regions referred to.

He declares that: Even in Kentucky labor is so scarce that we have heard of instances where half a fine field of wheat has been offered for merely harvesting it.

And he closses his cheerful essay thus: Thus it seems that there is to be a sort of eneral stirring up and mixing of the elements which go to make up the American people as our war ends. By it the people will probably become better known and it is hoped more reconciled to each other. It will strengthen and unite us and enable the South to slough the negro population as a class that can no longer be made useful, and whose presence is only dangerous to society.

be to the "negro population," and consider- It concludes thus: ing the writer's devotion to the institution of slavery, and how that devotion results mainly from intense and undying regard for the welfare of the negro, (for has the writer not been "instant in season and out of season" showing us how slavery has settle questions and difficulties affecting the weal of every household. Now we must never been anything but a nuisance to the white man, a perpetual draft upon both his prosperity and his benevolence?) considering these things we say, the hopeful announcement that we shall be able to "slough the negro population" sounds a little, just a little, cool. Perhaps it would not be impertinent to ask the editor what exact process he has in mind when he speaks of "sloughing" several millions of people? If he proposes to drive them into the sea or into exile and starvation, at the point of the bayonet, he may find some difficulty both moral and physical in his "sloughing" enterprise. But we waive that point just now for another. When we see the Democrat and its demented followers preparing to "slough" we shall put in our objections. For the present we desire merely to call this writer's attention to a question or two. Does the suspicion ever cross his mind that this "unprecedented" emigration into the Dr.Loomis' Treatise on Astronomy Southern States, of Northern and foreign laborers is anywise connected with the popular conviction that slavery is irrevocably overthrown in those States? Does he hear of any of the "superfluous labor of the North" coming to "fill up the vacant places" North" coming to "fill up the vacant places" the instruction of college classes in the first principles of Astronomy. The aim has been to limit the book to such for the unprecedented scarcity of labor in Kentucky? Can he conceive of the motives which induce Northern emigrants in all is expressed in concise and simple language; and when it cases to pass through Kentucky into a less salubrious climate and on to no better soil?

How the South Regards It.

The Macon Telegraph, of May 30th, con tains an article, which deals squarely with the question: "What shall the South do with the emancipated slaves?" It argues that the question cannot be shunned, but must streak of blue sky, an opening vista of be dealt with. Here is a single quotation: good cheer for the South. Its sorrow over the melancholy and afflicting doom brought take up this business, and in Georgia, this great and knotty question stares us in the around you—protect property, secure the comfort and well being of your laborers, and enforce justice and order among themselves? Now these are the great questions we should be thinking and talking over; and depend upon it we have got to seize them ourselves, and upon their solution hangs the question of beggary or comfort, pros-perity or ruin for the State of Georgia, and for yourselves and ourselves. Talk about "Yankees." It is time we were all Yankees, if by the term it meant a shrewd, energetic and indomitable encounter with difficulties. Tell us about "Abolitionists!" We are all Abolitionists by force of events—by the stern logic of wer.

Infamous Conduct of a Conductor.—Yesterday evening a colored drayman with a heavy load of tobacco stopped on the track at the corner of Main and Fourth streets. A street car coming up, the conductor ordered him off the track. There being a vehicle in front of him, he told the conductor he could not turn short off without striking the horses attached to the car. The order was repeated to get off the track, and the drayman turned short off, when the tail of the dray struck the horses, whereupon the conductor jumped off the car and struck the colored man in the back of the head with a paving stone, knocking him from his dray and causing a very seri-ous wound, if not a fracture of the skull. The conductor is known and we hope he will be arrested and punished for his das-

EMPLOY THE SOLDIERS.—Give them something to do. See that they have the means of earning an honest livelihood. Search them out. Ascertain what where their occupations before the war, and what style of employment they would prefer now. Advise them to begin labor as citi-zens at once. Show them how handy their little stock of money will be, if saved for a rainy day. Show yourself the friend of those who have done so much for you. Those returned veterans are conducting themselves nobly. They are winning gold-en opinions all over the State. It only re-mains for them to maintain this high reputation. To do this, they must have employment. See that they obtain it.

Night before last, as a soldier was ying on the sidewalk on Main street, above Preston, in rather a loose condition, two comrades came along, took him into a yard where he had a grassy bed, and proposed to take care of his money ($250), which they did. They then proposed to go after a hack to convey him to camp. They went but for-got to return, and the victimized man lay on the grassy bed axiously waiting the return of his friends, during the drenching rain that fell. It is to be hoped that though he recovered from his condition a poorer man, he was also a wiser one.

can independence will be such a one as has never yet been witnessed-such a one as probably no living American will ever again witness. The peculiar circumstances under which it is celebrated mark it as the great festival of the century. From a crisis in which our nationality appeared at one time to be doomed to destruction, the nationality appeared at one tion has just issued, grander, more powerful and more prosperous than ever. A grave peril has been changed into a great triumph. The abolition of slavery—the one event which in all future history will distinguish the property of the prope distinguish the present generation—has been successfully accomplished. Henceforth no slave breathes the air of free American the great Republic ica, and every citigen of the great Republic can stand erect before Lis fellow men of every land, the exponent of an untainted democracy. Besides this purification of our national escutcheon, there is another reason why we should feel a just pride in our intercourse with the world. The grandeur of our Government has been fully exhibited. Every king and every aristocrat in the other quarters of the globe, now fully understand that the United States is the foremost of the powers of the earth that republicanism is a success and demo racy an everlasting and invincible principle.

Standing at the head of human organizations, honored and feared by every people, the champion of mankind and the defender of popular rights, the United States now occupies a position to which no parallel can be found in the pages of history. Such are a few of the phases of our national condition which give an increased importance to the coming Fourth of July.

The Riot on Staten Island .- The Killed and Wounded. NEW YORK, June 23.—In the matter of the riot on Staten Island last evening, it appears the citizens were entertaining the 33d regiment, just returned from the war. some of the members of a detachment of the 66th, guarding the cotton on the quarantine grounds, came to the place of entertainment and were in a friendly spirit asked to take refreshments, and partook of it afterwards. A discussion sprung up about the merits of the two regiments, in which the citizens participated, and a couple of the 66th got into a fight; getting the worst of the fight they ran to their quarters and got their muskets, loaded them and fixed payonets and returned, using offensive anguage. They were set upon, their mus-tets taken away from them and driven insde the gates of the quarantine grounds. This enraged nearly the entire detachment and they took a stand inside the gates with nuskets loaded.

By this time a large crowd had gathered bout the gates, and stones were thrown at he armed men. The fight lasted half an the armed men. The light lasted half an hour with much vigor, and stones were used to a good purpose, when finally a boat arrived having on board Lieutenant Colonel Nelson in command of the detachment of the 66th, and he was informed as to the state of affairs. He at once leaped ashore and hastened to the gate, commanding the men to desist and return to their quarters. His command was scarcely uttered when he was shot by one of his own men, the ball passing through his breast. He will probably die. Meeting of Fire Commissioners. NEW YORK, June 22.—The Board of Meopolitan Fire Commissioners met this vening, and received the report of the law committee that the remittance for the Court of Appeals to the Supreme Court had arrived and been been duly filed, so that the commissioners will now legally have charge of the Fire Department. Applications were received from seventy-five to one hundred firemen to be enrolled as members of the new organization. Some of the assistant engineers reported to the commissioners and received instructions to continue on duty under the orders of Chief John Decker.

Mutiny of Troops on Board Steamer, NEW YORK, June 22.—The Commercial says the 2d United States colored cavalry nutinied on board steamer lying at the wharf in Portsmouth, last Tuesday even-ing. They took possession of the vessel, efused to allow it to leave, and next morning went ashore armed, run riot through the town. The white troops were summoned from various quarters. Gen. Graham took command of them and soon overpowered the blacks and drove them aboard ship, where preparations had been made for them. They were disarmed and sent down the bay. Intelligence from Washington.

How Breckinridge and Party Escaped New York, June 22.—The World's Havana letter, describing the escape of Breckinridge and party, says they went in a small boat to St. John's, and then hauled it across the country to Indian river and launched it n the inlet communicating with the ocean and moved down the coast sixty miles, sub-sisting on shell fish and turtle eggs. The United States gunboat saw them and sent a boat to find out who they were. Colonel Wood and two others went out to meet the He said that he was a fisherman and boat. He said that he was a fisherman and the balance of the party paroled rebel sol-diers. They exhibited their paroles and were allowed to go. Colonel Wood invited the officer who examined his passports to o ashore and dine with them on shell fish but he declined. That evening they left the shore, having a few dozen eggs and some clams, and reached Cardenas thirty-six hours afterwards. They suffered much from hunger during the journey, and only ne person at a time could sleep in the boat

QUITE AN UNPARLYAMENTARY PROCEED-ING.—The Philadelphia papers report quite a spicy scene, which occurred the other day in the Select Council of that city, between two of its members, which, lively as some of the respiratory two of its members, which, lively as some of the sessions in this city are, quite eclipses them. It is stated that Dr. Kamerly said that Mr. Gray was "a clown only fit for a cap and bells." Mr. Gray made a personal explanation, to the effect that Dr. K. was under the influence of vinous excitement, the expression which he used not being thus emphemised, however. Dr. K. introduced a motion in the shape of a blow on Mr. G.'s forehead, which had the effect of knocking him down. Mr. G. rose and offered an amendment by knocking Dr. K. down, and blee ing his nose and mouth. Dr. K. sustained his previous motion, while Mr. Gray continued to offer substitutes. Finally Dr. K. was himself laid on the table, or rather the floor, and the somewhat spirited discussion was by unanimous consent of the bystanders adjourned over. spirited discussion was by unanimous consent of the bystanders adjourned over. Quite a novelty in parliamentary usages the whole thing seems to have been and indicates a new phase of legislative order, when the mover, iastead of his motion, shall be "laid on the table," "counter motions" will consist of "coun'ering on the nob," and "spirited discussions" resolve themselves into "restling averages. themselves into "rattling exchanges on both sides,"
